

Greg Duker Bio

I have been a rock gatherer for as long as I can remember. I fell away from that pleasure for much of my working life but discovered “rocks that glow in the dark” in the early days of the internet. That led me to become a collector, and to self-educate myself about this phenomenon. I have since given many presentations to groups of all ages because the physical beauty of this reaction needs to be shared.